Uninstructed Delegates May Control.

Reports from a majority of the counties of the State, in which the Democrats held conventions Saturday for the purpose of selecting delegates to the State Convention at Louisville today, show that the uninstructed vote will hold the balance of power. There is about an even break in the instructed delegations for the extension of the county unit bill and against it.

While in every county meetings were harmonious, both sides were fighting hard for instructions to the delegations to the State convention, but in the majority of cases the delegates were instructed to vote as a whole on all matters and to consult the leaders of the party regarding planks which are to go into the platform.

BOURBON CONVENTION.

The Democrats of Bourbon county met in mass convention Saturday afternoon and selected delegates to the convention to be held in Louisville today. The meeting was called to order by Chairman C. C. Clarke, who stated the purpose of the convention. Judge Denis Dundon by a unanimous vote was selected as chairman and R. B. Hutchcraft, Jr., was chosen as secretary.

A set of resolutions and delegates were presented by W. B. Ardery. The resolutions provided that the delegation from Bourbon vote as a unit upon all matters coming before the convention and that upon organization the majority of the delegates should rule.

To the resolution Hon. C. M. Thomas offered a substitute to strike out the clause for the unit vote of the delegation on question to come before them, the substitute carrying the following delegates were named:

Denis Dundon, C. M. Thomas, C. C. Clarke, T. H. Talbott, D. C. Lisle, O. R. Rankin, W. B. Ardery, R. B. Hutchcraft, Jr., Demilion Robbins, J. J. Williams, Wm. Grannan, R. K. McCarney, W. H. McMillan, J. T. Hinton, Jas. M. O'Brien, C. M. Clay, T. W. Current, J. Q. Ward, E. P. Thomson, Geo. W. Morrow, D. D. Cline, Geo. Batterton, John Wiggins, C. A. McMillan, Jns. McClure.

First-Class Barber Shop.

Mr. H. C. Curtis has accepted a position at Cahal's barber shop. This makes four chairs Mr. Cahal is now running and it is no trouble to catch a turn and get a first-class shave in a short space of time. Hot and cold baths and polite attendants to wait on their patrons.

Bryson Placed Under Arrest.

As a result of the difficulty which occurred at Carlisle Wednesday Postmaster Homer B. Bryson was arrested on a warrant charging cutting with intent to kill, which was sworn out by Dr. Hugh Johnson. Bryson executed bond in the sum of $1,000. The men were the participants in a street fight at Carlisle which occurred over a political argument. Johnson received a slight gash on the throat from a knife in the hands of Bryson.

Atlantic City and Return.

The Chesapeake & Ohio railway will run a special train to Atlantic City August 17, leaving Lexington at 11:40 a. m., rate $17.00 round trip, good 15 days. Liberal stopovers returning. Sleeping car diagrams are now open. Persons wanting space reserved please address

GEORGE W. BARNEY, D. P. A.,
Lexington, Ky.

Go to Buck's.

For a nice bath, hair cut or shave, go to Buck's barber shop. Three first-class barbers.

Bourbon County Crop Conditions

It is conceded that the early corn will be materially cut in yield by the drouth and where prospects indicated 8, 10 and 12 barrels per acre, farmers will do well if they get a yield of half that quantity. The yield of the early planted corn will largely depend upon the cultivation. Where the corn was plowed often and the surface soil kept loose and mellow, the moisture was conserved and the growing corn was least affected by the drouth and will yield better than where cultivation was of the haphazard sort.

The farmer who was well up with his work at all stages of the growing season and had an ample force of men and teams to handle his crops, has better corn and tobacco than his neighbor who simply overcropped himself and could not give his crops sufficient cultivation.

Tobacco is good, bad and indifferent, with but little that is good to bring up the average of so much that is bad and indifferent. The crop was short 20 per cent in acreage and the probable yield now looks to be fully 60 per cent short of what was produced in 1910.

Refreshing showers Saturday helped to relieve the parched situation and to cool the temperature which for the week had been sizzling hot.

Farmers are going to sow largely of rye for pasturage and silage purposes as the failure of hay and oats makes it necessary to conserve feed or live stock.

A number of farmers are building silos which will help them to relieve the scarcity of feed as there will be plenty of late corn for silage.

Farmers are beginning to realize that the silo is the only way to supply feed during a protracted drouth or through the stormy spells of winter. If every farmer in the county had a silo, the effects of a severe drouth could have no bearing on the feed question and would consequently enable the farmers to take care of their live stock and get bigger and better prices.

WHAT CURES ECZEMA?

We have had so many inquiries lately regarding Eczema and other skin diseases, that we are glad to make our answer public. After careful investigation we have found that a simple wash of Oil of Wintergreen, as compounded in D. D. D., can be relied upon. We would not make this statement to our patrons, friends and neighbors unless we were sure of it—and although there are many so-called Eczema remedies sold, we ourselves unhesitatingly recommend D. D. D. Prescription.

Because—We know that it gives instant relief to that torturing itch.

Because—D. D. D. starts the cure at the foundation of the trouble.

Because—It cleanses, soothes and heals the skin.

Because—It enables Nature to repair the ravages of the disease.

Because—The records of ten years of complete cures of thousands of the most serious cases show that D. D. D. is today recognized as the absolutely reliable Eczema cure.

Drop into our store today, just to talk over your case with us.

WHERE SALVE FAILS

In regard to skin diseases medical authorities are now agreed on this:

Don't imprison the disease germs in your skin by the use of greasy salves, and thus encourage them to multiply. A true cure of all eczematous diseases can be brought about only by using the healing agents in the form of a liquid.

WASH THE GERMS OUT. A simple wash: A compound of Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol, and other ingredients as combined in the D. D. D. Prescription, penetrates to the disease germs and destroys it, then soothes and heals the skin as nothing else has ever done.

A 25-cent trial bottle will start the cure, and give you instant relief.

Quarrel Over Primary.

Wide differences of opinion have developed between the leaders of the Democratic party in the Fifth Appellate Court District as to the advisability of holding a primary to nominate a successor to Judge John D. Carroll.

Judge Carroll would like to have the primary held on election day, because it would prove less expensive to him and the other candidates and would insure a larger vote in the primary, but some of the leaders think that it is a bad policy to hold primaries on the day of a state election, and besides, that the nomination of a candidate one year in advance is too long for a nomination to be made.

It is pretty certain that Judge Carroll is going to have the primary on election day, for it is known that his friends have circulated a petition among the County Committeemen, and that a majority of them have signed a call for the committee to meet August 25 in Frankfort to determine the time, manner and method of making the nomination.

It is understood that Committeemen Meagher and Fitch have declined to call the committeemen together on the grounds that such an action would injure the prospects of the Democratic State ticket.

Feast of Assumption.

Today is the day of the Feast of the Assumption, and will be observed by Catholics the world over as a holy day of obligation. The day is set apart by the church to commemorate the assumption into heaven of the body of Mary, the immaculate mother of God, after her death, her body being saved from corruption, just as her soul had been preserved from the stain of original sin. It is not quite certain where the blessed Virgin died, but the common traditions of the church is that she died at Jerusalem where her empty tomb was shown to pilgrims in the seventh century. In any case it is certain that she really died and that her exemption from sin original and actual, did not exempt her paying this common debt of humanity. Still, although the blessed virgin tasted of death, her body was preserved from corruption and it was united to her soul in the kingdom of heaven. The church signifies her belief in this fact by celebrating the feast of her assumption annually on August 15.

Fixes Date for Thanksgiving.

President Taft will designate Thursday, November 30, as Thanksgiving Day this year. It always has been the custom to fix the last Thursday in the month. This year there has been some doubt because November happened to include five, instead of four Thursdays. The White House has been besieged by theatrical managers and those in charge of college football games to settle this doubt so that definite arrangements could be made for the usual array of special performances and sports that mark the day.

Pooling Plans Adopted.

The board of the Burley Tobacco Society, in session at Lexington Friday, adopted the pooling plans which carry a clause recommending the continuation of the Burley Tobacco Company as a shareholding manufacturing company for the manufacture of burley pool tobacco, the day set for closing the pool to be not later than January 1, 1914. It was also recommended that the pool may be declared off at any time by a two-thirds vote of the original signers or their heirs.

The following resolutions were adopted:

First—That a separate contract be presented so that members in the present Burley Tobacco Company, not desiring to pool can sign leaving their stock instant for ten years unless dissolved sooner by a two-thirds vote of the stockholders.

Second—From present crop conditions it would be unwise to dispose of any of our 1909 pooled tobacco at the recent low market.

Third—That we add to the pledge a clause showing that each signer agrees to leave his stock in the Burley Tobacco Company from the 1909 crop for a period of ten years unless dissolved sooner or by a two-thirds vote.

STOCK, CROP AND FARM NOTES

—It is announced that James B. Haggins, the New York multimillionaire, owner of Elemendorf stock farm, will ship fifty of his highest bred thoroughbred mares and foals to Berlin for sale at auction. This leaves only 100 mares at Elemendorf. These will be shipped to the English sales in September. The last shipment marks the passing of Elemendorf as a thoroughbred horse farm, its energies now are being turned to breeding fine cattle. Elemendorf was formerly the most extensive breeding plant in the United States.

Newspaper Plant Destroyed.

The four-story brick building, occupied by the Louisville Herald, in Louisville, was gutted by fire, which started at 5:30 o'clock Friday morning, causing a loss of about $125,000 to the building and to the stock. The fire is supposed to have started on the fourth floor, which was occupied by the engraving department and its cause is unknown at present. This fire was the fourth destructive blaze in Louisville in a period of forty-four hours.

It is obvious that it may not be a discovery, but it was a long time before I thought of it: The moistening of my shoe blacking (paste) with a few drops of kerosene. I used to throw the blacking away when it began to get dry, until this occurred to me.—Good Housekeeping Magazine.

Origin of Names of Dances.

The name "quadrille" is derived from the position of the dancers, the French word "quadrille" meaning a little square. "Country dance," does not mean a rustic dance, but is a corruption of the French term "contre danse," which relates to the position of the couples opposite each other.

Opportunity Missed.

A small boy from town was spending a few days in the country. One morning he heard the grown folks complaining of having been kept awake the night before by a skunk. Willie burst into tears. "Why, Willie, what's the matter?" the fond mother inquired. "Why didn't some one wake me up!" he blubbered. "I never smelled a skunk in all my life!"

A MERE COWBOY

He Did Not Prevent Edith
From Keeping Her Vow.

By HONORE WILLISIE.

To Edith's eastern eyes the ranch was a most fascinating place. The wide, rolling stretches of plain, flat and brown under the autumn skies; the lean cottonwoods, whose scant shade was a mere joke, and the ranch house itself, roomy, low and ugly, were all beautiful in her eyes.

If you had told Edith that this strange fascination was due to the undeniable charms of a certain tall cowboy, who had recently been made foreman of her brother's ranch, she would have tossed her pretty head at you and denied your insinuations scornfully.

"What," she had exclaimed when her sister-in-law had slyly remarked on the regularity of Edith's morning rides under the foreman's tutelage—"what! I have more than an ordinary interest founded on curiosity, for a cowboy! Why, Alice, you forget where I was born and bred."

At this pretty Mrs. Alcott had laughed merrily.

"Born and bred," she had repeated. "My dear child, when you come west you must forget that you were born and bred. I did so five years ago. The fact that you are a college girl won't help you half so much as the fact that you are unlearning your eastern method of saddle riding. These westerners don't give a rap concerning your parents or your grandparents. Their interests are all in the present, not the past. As Jimmy says, 'One man is as good as another here and a heap better.' So leave off your condescending airs with Harry Esterly. They are quite lost on him. I assure you."

Edith listened in silence to Mrs. Alcott and watched her as she moved quietly about the living room of the ranch house, which was as cozy and homelike as the exterior was dreary; then she picked up her riding whip, pulled the latch of her sombrero under her chin and with a disdainful little sniff walked out toward the corral, where Harry Esterly awaited her.

Harry watched her keenly as she strolled slowly toward him.

"Gad," he said to himself, "she's well put up!"

And she was—erect and lithe as a young Indian, with hair that shone bronze in the sun, with skin that glowed with health after the morning tub and with an up tilt to her beautiful head that would well give a thrill of pride to any man on whom she bestowed her friendship.

"Is that Josephine?" she called to Harry as she drew within hailing distance.

"Yes, that's Josephine," answered Harry, patting the smaller horse. "Isn't she a beauty?"

"She is indeed," said the girl, smoothing the soft nose of the pretty mare. "Are you sure she isn't part broncho? Brother Jim says that if a horse has ever so little a drop of broncho blood in him, ever so far back, he's bound to buck at least once in his life. And I don't want to be the one to discover that one drop!"

Harry shook his head. "Well, of course," he said, "it's hard to pick up a horse around here that you can vouch for. But really, Miss Alcott, I think Josephine is as safe as a cradle."

Edith hung her whip on the saddle pommel and, motioning away Harry's offered hand, swung herself into the saddle.

"This morning," he said, "I'm going to take you to my particular pet spot. It's only half an hour's ride from here."

Out they raced across the dusty plain, the horses taking the barbed wire fences as lightly as birds. They drew rein on a lonely little hillock, the only break in the level of the plain for miles around.

"Look," said Harry. "See how one side is scooped out. Some Indian made himself a shelter here some time from a dust storm. And now stand here on top for a moment and you will see why I like this place."

Edith looked. The slight eminence gave a surprising sweep of view—the far ranch house, with the distant grazing herds, the blue line of haze that marked the mountains and, farther still, the brown of the plain, merging into the blue of the desert. Toward the desert Harry looked apprehensively.

"Miss Edith," he said, "I believe that we'll have a dust storm here in an hour or so. The air felt like it this morning, with this scorching wind, and now I can see it gathering out there on the desert. I wonder if you would be willing to ride in to the ranch alone while I ride out to speak to Mr. Alcott?"

Edith blushed a little. "Why, yes, of course I'll go, but—but I wish you would let me ride your horse back, Mr. Esterly. I'm so afraid Josephine will buck."

"Why, she's as safe as a church. And Billy here used to buck like a jack rabbit. Of course he's all right now, though."

"Please!" pleaded the girl. Harry jumped from his horse and helped Edith from the saddle.

"Let me change saddles quickly," he said. "We've no time to waste." And in a few minutes Edith was cantering swiftly toward the ranch house, while Harry rode out toward the distant herd.

Half an hour after Edith reached the house the dust storm was upon them. Whirlpools of dust were hurled upon the house by a howling wind that shook the very rafters.

Hour after hour of intense dry heat, combined with the screeching of the wind, rasped the nerves almost to the breaking point. Edith strolled restlessly from room to room, watching the dust sift in through the closed window and under the doors. Finally she approached Mr. Alcott, who had come in just after the storm broke.

"Has Mr. Esterly come in?" she asked. "Would you mind looking, Jimmy?"

Mr. Alcott sighed patiently and went out into the storm. In a few minutes he returned, looking a little anxious.

"He's not there," he said. "He told me he'd reach here by the time the storm broke. It's letting up a little, and I'll send one of the men out soon, though nothing could have happened to an old timer like Harry."

Edith said nothing, but as the wind lessened she stole softly from the room and out toward the stables. Dusk was just beginning to deepen as she rode swiftly out toward the stopping place of the morning.

"If he got caught he made for that little shelter, I know," she said to herself. "But I know that that Josephine has done something, even if he is a cowboy, and it's all my fault."

She drew rein by the hillock. Back in its shadows sat Harry, pale, but calmly smoking, until he saw the startled eyes of the girl. Edith gave him no time for questions.

"Oh," she moaned, "I knew Josephine would do something!"

Harry glanced in an embarrassed way at his ankle, about which he had awkwardly tied a handkerchief.

"All my own carelessness," he said. "I stood in the saddle to look for the herd, and if the blamed little imp didn't buck without a word of warning and throw me! I'll never hear the end of this at the ranch. First horse that's thrown me in five years. They'll find us in a little while. They know this place."

But Edith could not see the humor of the situation.

"I was a selfish, cruel thing," she moaned. "Oh, you poor, poor boy!"

Harry looked at her closely. Then he leaned forward and quietly took possession of her hand.

"Edith," he said softly—"Edith, do you care?"

Edith looked into the dusk. "A cowboy," she thought, "just a plain cowboy! What would they say?"

Then with a deep blush she looked into his face. "Yes," she half whispered, "I'm afraid I do. You see, I always said I'd never marry any but a college man."

"Is that so?" chuckled Harry. "Well, you're keeping your vow. I have a sheepskin kicking around in my stuff somewhere."

"And you never told me!" Edith exclaimed.

Harry looked up in surprise. "Gee," he said, "I'd forgotten all about it!"

And he sighed in absolute content as he felt Edith's face against his coat sleeve.

Wasted Hints.

A sea captain's wife tells this story of a maiden lady, sister of one of the owners of the ship on which she once made a long voyage. She had very decided opinions on most matters, and she and the captain had many spirited arguments at the dinner table.

The captain's wife, a meek, submissive little soul, fearing that in the heat of argument her husband might say something to offend their august passenger, was in the habit of kicking him on the shins to hint at moderation. Nevertheless all these reminders passed unheeded.

One day she administered a more vigorous kick than usual and noticed an expression of pain flit across the face of the mate, who sat opposite her.

"Oh, Mr. Brown, was that your shin?" she asked.

"Yes, Mrs. Blaikie," said the mate meekly, "hit's been my shin hall the voyage, ma'am."—Youth's Companion.

The Why of a Pseudonym.

The preference of many women writers for a male pseudonym is doubtless a survival of the old superstition that to engage in the task of authorship was "unwomanly." The London Spectator says. The Bronte sisters set the fashion in appearing as Currer, Acton and Ellis Bell respectively. Their example was followed by George Eliot. But "George" is a name to which the distressed lady novelist flies as to a city of refuge. We have had George Egerton, George Fleming, George Paston and a host of others. Then, too, there have been John Oliver Hobbes, Ralph Iron, Frank Hamel and Frank Danby. On the other hand, Mr. Oliver Madox Hueffer shares with the late William Sharp the distinction of a feminine disguise, for he was known to the novel reading public for a long time as "Jane Warden."

A Suggestive Name.

"While walking in the south a little while ago," a pedestrian writes, "I came upon an old darky with a load of hay. He was standing in the road, scratching his head and looking worried—oh, very worried!"

"What's the matter, uncle?" I asked.

"Well, massa, I done got a load of hay for a man and blessed if I can 'member his name."

"Knowing most of the people around there, I asked, 'What does his name sound like?'"

"Well," said uncle, "it reminds me of Christmas, Fourth o' July an' New Year's."

"Oh, I said, 'you mean Holiday.'"

"Yessah, yessah, that's him!"

"And away he went."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Famous Men Tall and Short.

Among the very distinguished men of the country were some of large stature—Charles Sumner, more than six feet, four inches; Jefferson and Andrew Jackson, considerably more than six feet in height. Among those of six feet and over may be mentioned Samuel Adams, George Washington, Lincoln, Bismarck, Thackeray, Charles Darwin, Henry Ward Beecher, Rufus Choate and Daniel O'Connell. The list of famous men of medium height is long, including Browning and John Adams.

Disliked Cinematograph.

While a performing tigress was being put through her tricks recently by her tamer Hervemann in front of a cinematograph at Nice, France, she displayed the utmost resentment at seeing the apparatus leveled in her direction. Failing to get at the instrument or its operator, she turned on the trainer and mauled him severely.

Quick Curtain!

She was a very pretty girl and terribly enthusiastic. When the young navy officer was introduced to her she made no attempt to disguise her interest. "I do so love the navy," she chanted to him fervently, breathing her ecstatic emotion, "Where is the navy now?"

A Boy's Question.

At times Johnny seems as if he were a hundred years old. He has a quaint, bird-like way of cocking his head on one side, and asking a question that appears to be the result of years of study. If I could answer some of those questions, I should solve the darkest mysteries of life and death.—T. B. Aldrich.

Unselfishness.

Unselfishness is so inseparably linked with motherhood that the possibility of overstepping safe boundaries and thus creating selfish instincts in the boy or girl for whom you are making all the sacrifices seldom suggests itself—think about the matter some time.

Time for Eggs to Hatch.

D. D. D. has become so famous as a cure and instant relief in Eczema and all other serious skin diseases, that its value is sometimes overlooked in clearing up rash, pimples, blackheads, and all other minor forms of skin impurities.

The fact is, that while D. D. ### I REMEMBER, I REMEMBER.

I remember, I remember. The house where I was born. The sight of that lopsided shack. Today would make me mourn—The crooked little brick paved walk, The henhouse in the rear, With cabbage growing at the side And pigsty rather near.

I remember, I remember. The corncock father had. (A five cent piece of navy plug In those days made him glad); The old stove in the kitchen And father's stockinged feet. All that was ere prosperity Swept us on Easy street.

I remember, I remember. The pump in our back yard, Where father watered all the stock And found it rather hard. But now he has another way—And needs no trough or pump—He waters stock down in the street And makes the lambskins jump.

I remember, I remember—But, oh, the changes wrought Are queerer than the little duke That Sister Helen bought! Since father goes to twenty clubs, And mother has her set We have no use for mem'ry's art—We're trying to forget!—Jacob J. Leibold in Kansas City Star.

Monogamy Is Explained.

A woman missionary in China was taking tea with a mandarin's eight wives. The Chinese ladies examined her clothing, her hair, her teeth, and so on, but her feet especially amazed them.

"Why," cried one, "you can walk and run as well as a man!"

"Yes, to be sure," said the missionary.

"Can you ride a horse and swim too?"

"Yes."

"Then you must be as strong as a man."

"I am."

"And you wouldn't let a man beat you, not even if he was your husband, would you?"

"Indeed, I wouldn't," said the missionary.

The mandarin's eight ladies looked at one another, nodding their heads. Then the oldest said softly:

"Now I understand why the foreign devil never has more than one wife. He is afraid."—Detroit Free Press.

Too Public For Him.

He was a mild mannered little man, short, with gray hair and spectacles. It was noon on Washington street, and, as usual, the crowds were shoving and pushing to get somewhere. The little man was trying to worm his way through the crowds.

A well dressed woman, accompanied by a small boy, was mixed up in the crowd. She wanted to cross the street. The boy stopped to look in a window.

The lady reached down and grasped a hand, saying, "Take my hand, dear."

"Not right here on the public street," she was startled to hear some one reply.

Looking down, she saw that she was clasping the hand of the very inoffensive little man, who seemed to be much confused and embarrassed.

"Sir," said she haughtily, "I don't want you; I want my son!"—Boston Traveler.

Making It Legal.

"We didn't know what to do about the Plute Pete," said the Crimson Gulch citizen. "He was a real good feller, but he would be careless about shootin' up the populace."

"Did you straighten out the matter?"

"To some extent. We elected him sheriff, thereby makin' it look a little more legal."—Washington Star.

Early Sunday Morning Fire.

Fire of an unknown origin broke out in the store of Bennie Weissberg at an early hour Sunday morning and entailed a loss on the stock of clothing carried by the establishment to the extent of $8,000, which is only partly covered by insurance, while the building on Main street in which it is located suffered but little damage.

The fire was discovered about 2:30 o'clock by Patrolman Chas. Thomas who sent in the alarm and in a few minutes the fire department was on the scene. Patrolman Thomas, who was making his rounds, saw smoke emitting from the windows of the building and made an investigation finding the entire building filled with a dense smoke.

The fire department responded to an alarm from Box 46 and had two lines turned into the threatened building. At first it was thought the fire had started on the second floor and a line of hose was run to the second story. This floor was flooded with water before it was observed the fire was smoldering among the clothing on the first floor.

The firemen effected an entrance from Main street by breaking out the plate glass in the front door and it was not long before the seat of the fire was located. The burning clothes were thrown out on the floor and extinguished.

Owing to the location of the store, which is in the Singer building between the clothing store of Mitchell & Blakemore and the Postal Telegraph office and wall paper store of S. E. Borland, which adjoins the livery stable of D. W. Peed, it was feared for a time a disastrous fire would result. The timely discovery and the prompt work of the firemen before it got beyond control, probably prevented a serious conflagration.

Most of the damage sustained by Mr. Weissberg, was from the smoke and water. Outside of several suits of clothes and a number of pairs of overalls, nothing else was burned. The floors were flooded with water which ran through from the second story greatly damaging the fixtures upon which he carried insurance to the amount of $500 with the agency of W. A. Thompson.

Upon the stock Mr. Weissberg carried $4,000 insurance, $2,000 with McClure & Clendenin, and $1,000 each with the agencies of Wilmoth and Varden and C. L. Blackerby.

Drought Situation Relieved.

While extremely warm weather prevails in this section the drought situation was relieved to some extent Sunday afternoon when a steady rain fell for about two hours, and which was general throughout the county. In the vicinity of Millersburg it is reported the rain which lasted for fully two hours, came in torrents, bringing relief to the farmers in that section who were despairing of their crops. At Hutchison the farmers were treated to a glorious shower and in North Middletown precinct where there has not been a precipitation of any consequence for two months a bountiful rain fell.

Fine Chance for Star-Gazers.

A most interesting and spectacular astral phenomenon is promised the country Wednesday and Thursday nights of this week. Mars and Saturn will be in conjunction Wednesday night and the following night Mars, Saturn and the moon will be in conjunction.

Mars apparently will pass very close to Saturn and to the naked eye Wednesday it will appear as bright as a double star, since the distance between the two will be only 21 minutes of an arc or about two-thirds the apparent width of the moon.

Mars will pass north of Saturn, and the moon will be to the left or east of the planets. It will be close Wednesday night but Thursday the three will almost appear as one.

Except for the moon the two planets will be the brightest objects in the sky Wednesday night, say astronomers. Mars is very bright right now, almost as bright as Venus. Saturn also is bright, and the two together will form a sight well worth looking at. They will rise about ten o'clock and stay together all night side by side. They will be very conspicuous.

Sunday afternoon the Bourbonites journeyed to Lexington where they met the Colts in a double bill, winning the first game by a score of 8 to 2 and losing the second by a score of 7 to 3. In the first game the locals hammered Schneider from the mound in the first inning and when Robbins was sent in to stem the tide the slug-fest continued.

In the fourth McKernan was put out of the game for disputing a decision of Umpire McGloom.

Hauser again had the "goat" of the Yankee crew and delivered the goods in the opening bill, but two games proved too much and after the second game had gone two innings George was substituted.

Tafferty hurled the second game for the Colts and held the Bourbonites to four hits, two of which went for home runs. The score: First game.

Second game.

First base on errors—Paris 1. Hit by pitcher—Viox. Time—1:23. Umpire—McGloom.

Both contests were long drawn out and tired the large crowd very much.

Fully two hundred Paris fans went over on three cars to witness the games.

Umpire McGloom officiated in both games and he showed up as about one of the rank officials that ever donned a windpad and mask.

McKernan's protest resulted in his being put out of the game by McGloom and George was fined $5 for talking a little too loud on the coaching line.

Hauser couldn't go the full two games and did well to pull out with the first, owing to the numerous misplays and decisions of "his umps."

Goodman couldn't "come back" as a backstop, and Harrell went behind the bat in the second game after Mayer was injured.

McGloom's vision was extremely bad. Eight decisions at first base helped Lexington some and deprived Paris of several chances. On balls and strikes he was the limit.

Mayer was struck on the right hand by a pitched ball and two fingers were mashed. McGloom saw the injury but would not permit Mayer to take his base as the ball bounded in the diamond and Criss fielded it to Badger. Mayer will be out for several days nursing his injured hand.

Paris proved the best in the contest with the Pioneers at White Park yesterday afternoon by a score of 4 to 1. Both Sterling and Scheneberg were on their mettle and hitting honors between the two clubs were equally divided. The Pioneers, however had the better of the long hitting and four of their six safeties went for extra bases.

The locals were able to connect with

Sterling when their safeties counted for runs and coupled with two misplays they were enabled to assume a lead which the visitors were unable to overcome. In the third inning Goodman put the ball over the left field fence for a home run.

Good Show at the Grand.

The Grand can boast of an excellent bill for the first two nights of the present week. Last night the management presented two very high class comedians. Clayton Crouch, a black face comedian, presented an excellent monologue while Palmer and Larue a musical team delighted the audience with their high class act. Another pleasing feature of the bill is the singing of Miss Birdie Wolstein, whose vocal selection charmed her hearers. Two excellent motion pictures completed one of the most meritorious bills ever presented to the patrons of the popular play-house.

Petty Thefts Committed.

The police are on the lookout for a white man who has for several days been committing petty thefts in this community. Friday evening a bicycle belonging to Boone Baldwin was stolen from in front of his residence on South Main street and later disposed of to James Eads for $3. Eads took the bicycle to Lavin & Connell's for repairs, and at the store the wheel was recognized as belonging to Baldwin, who was notified. He came to the store and Eads turned the bicycle over to its owner and explained how it came in his possession. He gave a description of the man who has not been seen since the incident. Early Saturday evening porch cushions and pillows from a baby buggy were taken from the porch of Dr. J. W. Jameson's residence on Pleasant street. The man was seen in the neighborhood carrying the pillows and is believed to be the same that committed the theft of Mr. Baldwin's bicycle.

Jail Residence Being Razed.

A large force of hands began work yesterday in tearing down the residence of the county jail and it is expected the task will be completed today, when work upon the foundation for the new structure will be begun immediately. Jailer Joe Farris and family moved last Thursday into the Haines property directly opposite the jail which they will occupy until the new residence is completed. The new structure, which will be built to admit the construction of another track on the line of the L. & N. will be of greater depth but much narrower than the old building.

Hospital League to Serve Fair Dinner.

The Bourbon County Hospital League composed of a large number of ladies of this city and county will serve dinner at the Bourbon Fair this year. The league, which is made up of more than one hundred members of representative families, and as they will have the co-operation and assistance of the best housekeepers in this section, it is an assured fact that the dinners will be up to the standard already attained by the ladies of the Methodist and Baptist churches, and of the Bourbon County School Improvement League, who have previously had charge of the dining room, particularly as many members of the Hospital League are also members of these organizations.

Women and Physical Fitness.

If women are going to busy themselves with men's work, they must take the same means to keep themselves fit for it. The habit of ages has taught them to take delight in providing as good fare as possible for their menkind. ## Gallery of Old Roman Villa.

A subterranean gallery filled with ancient statues still standing on their original pedestals was the startling and interesting discovery accidentally made a few days ago at Genzano, near Lake Nemi, Italy. The gallery is partially choked with loose earth and rubbish and the statues have not yet been identified. Evidently the gallery belonged to a Roman villa or a temple.

Candidates for Council Announce.

The present members of the City Council are announced in this issue as Democratic candidates for nomination for election in November. Their management of the different departments deserves endorsement of the heartiest kind as during their term the city's streets have all been put in the very best condition, many new ones having been made and the old ones having been thoroughly reconstructed. Many new pavements have been laid and the general condition of the city is as good as can be found in any city of its class.

The best feature of it all is that this has all been accomplished with a lowered tax rate and without borrowing money in the present year as has been necessary for a number of years heretofore.

It would be the proper thing to return the present council without opposition as an expression of appreciation of the discharge of their duties with such faithfulness and eminent success.

Transferred to Paris.

Mr. J. W. Wash, formerly manager of the Maysville Telephone Co., has been transferred to the office in this city where he will fill the position of plant foreman, a position recently created by the local company. Mr. Wash will have charge of the reconstruction work of the company in this county.

Without Naming Names.

An alienist says that one out of every 279 residents of this city is insane. And each of the 279 is absolutely certain he knows which one.—New York Herald.

Police Judge and Clerk Fight.

As a result of the bitterness in the contest Saturday in Frankfort in the Democratic mass convention against the Beckham and anti-Beckham supporters to select delegates to the State Democratic Convention, Mayor James H. Polsgrove and Circuit Clerk Pen Marshall had a fist fight in that city Sunday.

Circuit Clerk Marshall, a leader of the anti-Beckham faction, called Mayor Polsgrove an attic politician, and Mayor Polsgrove replied that he had the credentials and would sit in the convention.

Mr. Marshall said that he had secured the credentials dishonestly, and then the lie was passed. Mr. Marshall struck Mayor Polsgrove on the nose, knocking off his glasses and marking him slightly.

Friend interfered and there was no further trouble.

THE KNAPP IDEA.

"Punishment Should Fit the Criminal, Not the Crime."

"What do you think of a chief of police who loves Emerson, reads Walt Whitman and believes in the Christ idea as a good working proposition every day in the week?" asks George Creel in the American Magazine. "Well, that's Perry Knapp of Toledo, O., and prominent above all else in his office is this placard: 'Punishment Should Fit the Criminal, Not the Crime.' That's the Knapp idea! He doesn't divide humanity into 'good' and 'bad' classes, nor does he believe that justice is best served by malignant and relentless pursuit of every offender against some law. Instead of considering himself as a millstone for the grinding of human grist, he acts as a man dealing with men. While convinced that society needs protection against wrongdoers, he rejects the usual theory that society must be revenged on wrongdoers.

"Golden Rule" Jones took clubs away from the policemen and gave them canes. When Perry Knapp was promoted to be chief he banished the canes, so that the Toledo bluecoats really express the majesty of the law, not a mere threat of violence.

"Of course there are those who believe that vice and crime must be dealt with by force and that the slightest gentleness will encourage wrongdoing. As an answer to these the percentage of crime is less in Toledo than any other city of its size in the country. And many a chief of police, scratching his head in perplexed fashion, has wondered why Perry Knapp has 'so little trouble.'"

MISSING HIS GUESS.

Commissioner of Patents Ellsworth Was a Poor Prophet.

In one week recently the patent office issued 773 patents. The total number issued up to date was 994,104, in sight of the million mark.

In view of these figures the following excerpt from the report of the commissioner of patents for the year 1843 is of interest as showing how widely a man, even a commissioner of patents, can miss his guess:

The whole number of patents issued by the United States up to January, 1844, was 13,523. The patents granted for the past year (1843) were 531 in number, exceeding those of the previous year by twenty-four.

The advancement of the arts from year to year taxes our credulity and seems to preclude the early arrival of that period when human improvement must end.

HENRY W. ELLSWORTH,
Commissioner of Patents.

In 1844 there were no telegraphs, telephones, automobiles, electric lights or motors, phonographs or airplanes. Anti-septic surgery was still in the dim future, and doctors were swathing typhoid fever patients in blankets and immersing them in unventilated rooms, while people still walked ten miles to see a railroad train.—New York Times.

Negro Shoots Another Black.

Chas. Clarke, a negro, shot and wounded Sam Seest, also colored, in an altercation which occurred late Thursday evening on the farm of Lee Deavers, a few miles from Paris on the Jacktown pike.

Both negroes, it is said, had been paying attention to a negro woman in that neighborhood, and from this the difficulty arose, resulting in Clark emptying the contents of a shotgun into Seest. The charge took effect in his chest, face and left arm, inflicting dangerous wounds and probably destroying the sight of the right eye.

Clark, who was employed on the farm of Mr. S. G. Clay, was arrested at the farm Friday morning and brought to Paris where he was lodged in jail.

Just What He Wanted.

A young minister settled over a small country parish was instructed by his parishioners to procure a piano for their use. He did so, telling the dealer to charge the bill for rental to the secretary of the parish. When the bill amounted to $25, the society being unable to pay it as well as the salary of the pastor, the music dealer dunned the minister for the money, telling him that he assumed the responsibility. The latter replied that he never assumed the responsibility of another, having all he could do to pay his own bills, whereupon the dealer threatened to sue him.

A short time after our friend received a letter from a New York collection agency, to which as well as several following he paid no attention until the following short but definite letter came:

Dear Sir—Unless you remit at once we shall publish you all over the country as a delinquent debtor.

To which he replied:

Gentlemen—Ever since I entered the ministry I have been struggling for the title of D. D. Go ahead.

Unwearied Life.

Why should we ever weary of this life? Our souls should widen ever, not contract;

Grow stronger and not harder in the strife.

Filling each moment with a noble act. If we live thus, of vigor all compact,

Doing our duty to our fellow men And striving rather to exalt our race

Than our poor selves with earnest hand or pen.

We shall erect our names a dwelling place

Which not all ages shall cast down again. Offspring of time shall then be born each hour,

Which, as of old, earth lovingly shall guard

To live forever in youth's perfect flower And guide her future children heavenward.

—James Russell Lowell.

His Precious Decoration.

An actor who had attained some reputation in Berlin once played in a small German principality for a fortnight. The grand duke, to the actor's disappointment, failed to decorate him. He mentioned this oversight at a court dinner to a chamberlain, and the next day he was sent for.

"My friend," said the grand duke, handing the actor a box, "here is something to remember me by."

The overjoyed actor departed, but his cab had hardly gone ten yards when, ordering it to return again, the actor was once more ushered into the grand duke's presence.

"Oh, sir," he said, "I had to drive back. There are two crosses in the box."

"Oh, no matter," said the grand duke. "Give the other to the cabman."

Kept on Feeling Bad.

Judge W. C. Adamson, chairman of the committee on Interstate and foreign commerce in the house of representatives, was brought up on a farm in Georgia. One day his father told him he must go to Atlanta for three days, and he set young Adamson a stint to hoe a field of ground peas during the parental absence, thinking to keep the young man busy.

"I went out and looked over the field the first morning," said Adamson, "and decided I could do the work in two days, so I went fishing. I had poor luck and came back feeling mighty bad. Next morning I went out and looked at the peas and decided if I worked like fury I could hoe it all in one day, and I went fishing again. I had no luck and came back feeling mighty bad."

"Next morning I took another look at the field, decided I couldn't hoe it in a day and went fishing again. I had poor luck and came back feeling mighty bad. Then father came home, saw the field and led me to the barn."

"Well," Representative Hughes of Georgia said, "what happened?"

"Why," Adamson said, "I argued the case, but I had poor luck and came back feeling mighty bad."—Saturday Evening Post.

A Court Fool's Joke.

Scogan, the famous court jester of Edward IV., dearly loved a practical joke. Once he borrowed money of the king and when the day for payment came was unable to make good his word. He feared the king's anger and decided to appease him by a joke. Feigning death, he had his friends carry his body before Edward. The king fell a ready victim to the deception and in his lamentations over the supposed dead fool said he freely forgave the debt. Scogan immediately sprang to his feet, exclaiming, "The news is so revivifying that it has called me back to life."

Mutual Distrust.

On one occasion Daniel Webster was on his way to Washington and was compelled to proceed at night by stage from Baltimore. He had no traveling companion, and the driver had a sort of felon look, which produced no inconsiderable alarm in the senator. "I endeavored to tranquilize myself," said Mr. Webster, "and had partly succeeded when we reached the dark woods between Bladensburg and Washington, a proper scene for murder or outrage, and here, I confess, my courage again deserted me. Just then the driver turned to me and with a gruff voice inquired my name. I gave it to him. 'Where are you going?' said he. The reply was: 'To Washington. I am a senator.' Upon this the driver seized me fervently by the hand and exclaimed: 'How glad I am! I took you for a highwayman!'"

Modern Dancing.

No one now of course waltzes. The old trois temps is as dead as death. A strange shuffle in which your shoulders shuffle too, you cling sardine fashion to your partner, who pushes you along like a perambulator, and never lift your feet off the ground with a sort of apache cum coster cum half seas over action, is the "dance," if you please, of the moment.—The Tatler.

Get Little for Their Furs.

Furs are collected in great numbers along the upper waters of the Yukon river. The Indian or white trapper is often satisfied with a price hardly commensurate with market value, even after deducting the cost of marketing. When taken to the United States, a price two or three times that paid the trapper is obtained for many of the furs.

The Two Kinds of Widows.

There are two kinds of widows, grass and sod. The sod species, sometimes known as the common or garden variety of widow, is relieved of the burden of a spouse. The grass widow has a husband on her hands, but cannot put said hands upon him.—From Case and Comment.

by a cure-defying trouble that baffled doctor and resisted all remedies he tried, John W. Modders, of Moddersville, Mich., seemed doomed. He had to sell his farm and give up work. His neighbors said, "he can't live much longer." ## MUTILATED COINS.

Rules Under Which the Government Will Purchase Them.

Director Roberts of the United States mint says in a circular regarding the purchase of mutilated coins that such coins of any denomination will be received at any one of the mints or assay offices of the United States and the value of the fine gold contained will be paid to the depositor at the rate of $20.67 plus per ounce fine or $18.60 plus per ounce standard (.900). Mutilated silver coins of the United States will be purchased at the mints in Philadelphia, San Francisco and Denver at the price fixed from time to time by the director of the mint for silver contained in gold deposits. Mutilated minor coins (the five cent nickel and one cent bronze pieces) will be purchased at the mint in Philadelphia in lots of not less than one pound of each kind, and mutilated bronze one cent pieces will be purchased at the mints in San Francisco and Denver in lots of not less than one pound at a price fixed from time to time by the director of the mint. Minor coins which can be clearly and readily identified as genuine coins of the United States and which are not appreciably reduced in weight, except by natural abrasion, will be redeemed or exchanged at the treasury or at any subtreasury when presented in the sum of $20 or multiples thereof.—Bradstreet's.

ONIONS AND OLIVE OIL.

Foods That Will Ward Off Scarlet Fever and Diphtheria.

Since Dr. Frederick A. Kraft, the Socialist health commissioner of Milwaukee, made his recent announcement that eating onions and olive oil is a preventive of scarlet fever and diphtheria he has been testing the merits of his theory so successfully that the oil and onion cure is attracting widespread attention among medical men.

Health Commissioner Kraft has investigated every recent case of scarlet fever and diphtheria that he could reach, and he has found that in no family where a case of either disease broke out were onions or olive oil used. He calls attention to the fact that districts where onions are largely used are free of scarlet fever and diphtheria. Consequently he urged people everywhere to overcome whatever dislike they may have to the much maligned onion and to eat it freely. You can slice it and boil it in olive oil. You can eat it raw with a little olive oil poured over it. The addition of olive oil he considers important, and the best way of all is to eat a raw onion with oil at night immediately before retiring.

Carlyle's Birthplace.

Carlyle's birthplace, the Arched House at Ecclefechan, is now open to the public on a permanent basis. In December last Alexander Carlyle conveyed the building to the Carlyle house memorial trust. The birthplace will for the future be carefully preserved and kept in proper order and repair. The house contains many "curiosities," including a number which were at 24 Cheyne Row during the whole or some part of Carlyle's residence there. Ecclefechan churchyard, where Carlyle was buried, is only three minutes' walk from the Arched House.—Westminster Gazette.

The Largest Loom.

At Rodewisch, Saxony, the center of the German textile industry, there has been set up what is thought to be the largest weaving loom in the world. This huge crank is seventy-seven feet long and sixty feet wide. It stands ten feet high and weighs thirty-five tons. The shuttle is of corresponding proportions and travels to and fro at the rate of fifteen times a minute. This machine is capable of turning out seamless disks of felt, such as are used in paper mills, to 233 feet in circumference.—Harper's Weekly.

A Moving Land.

One of the broad slopes of Mont Gringuez, France, is reported to have become detached from its foundations and to have moved over a distance of nearly a quarter of a mile, carrying with it the soil, meadows and woods and covering up in its passage roads and bridges that stood in the way. A chestnut grove has traveled 500 feet without suffering any apparent damage, but many small lakes have been formed by the damming of the waters.—Scientific American.

Two Colonial Flags.

One of the only two colonial flags believed to be in existence was exhibited Flag day in a State street window in Chicago. The window held only the flag and a picture of George Washington, whose aid-de-camp, General Posey, carried the flag during the Revolution. This flag is the property of Michael Robinson of Shawneetown, Ill., the other flag being owned by the Maryland Historical society.

LAXATIVE SENT FREE TO TRY

It may be taken for granted that there is no family that does not sometime need a laxative. If you don't know of a good laxative, or the laxative you are using is losing its effect, we want to call your attention to Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which thousands of families are using successfully.

We have scores of letters from mothers, and scores from prominent men saying they are using it personally and giving it to their families, men like Mr. C. K. Smith of the Traffic Clearing House, Pine Bluff, Ark., and Mr. George B. Turner, a lawyer of Harlan, Ky. The thousands of mothers who use it themselves and give it to their children would take too much space to mention.

The reason they prefer Syrup Pepsin is that it is a mild, gentle laxative.

The contract between President C. C. Fisher, of the M. F. C., Mr. Clarence Miller and Miller & Best for the building of waterworks for the college has been closed and work on the cistern at the Peed & McClintock barn has begun. This cistern is about 50 feet deep in a basin of ten feet of solid rock, with a never failing vein. The cistern is practically full of water now and the work of pumping it out has begun. A new engine has been purchased by the contractors which is now at work pumping out the water at the rate of forty gallons per minute. The cistern will be concreted from the top of the solid rock basin and completely arched over so that no impurities from the outside can get into it. When this cistern is completed it will be sufficient to furnish the college with all the water needed for all purposes, and the water arrangements will then be as good as that of any school in the country, with water much purer and cooler than that taken from the average small stream or any river in dry weather.

Women With Ball Clubs.

"In the early days," says Hugh Fullerton in the American Magazine, "a woman with a ball club was a rarity. Now it is common for seven or eight players to take their wives on long trips, and sometimes their children. Managers admit that the women have a restraining and refining influence, but they are not wanted. Often managers make wry faces when notified that some of the men are taking their wives. The women take the minds of the players off the game—sometimes a good thing, but more frequently a bad one. If there should be a quarrel the wives are certain to take sides. Two of the Cubs lost their tempers one night and clashed. It was over in a minute, and both were sorry. Chance, sitting as judge, passed this sentence: 'I'll fine you each $10, and if either of you dares tell his wife I'll make it $100.'"

Counted Ants For Two Years.

A marvel of scientific research, says our Berlin correspondent, has been accomplished by Professor Yemg, who has been investigating the interior condition of ant hills. By dint of patient observation Professor Yemg discovered that an ant hill two feet in height was inhabited by 93,750 ants. Other ant hills of almost the same size were found to contain 67,500, 53,000 and 48,000 ants respectively. These observations and the counting of the tiny insects occupied two years.—London Standard.

A Lottery Romance.

There was a lottery romance at the Credit Foncier in Amiens recently when the drawing of lottery bonds took place. On the winning number of a prize of 100,000 francs being called out a woman jumped to her feet, waved a small piece of paper, shrieked and fainted. She was a hardworking tailor, fifty-eight years old, who invested 100 francs against a rainy day. She bought lottery bonds with the money, and the winning of the prize has made her independent.

Uses of Glass.

In Switzerland goods are weighed with glass weights. In fact, on the continent generally glass is taking the place of wood and iron in many directions, for it can be made stronger even than stone, and the day is not far off when houses will be built entirely of glass.

Thackeray's Disfigured Nose.

The usual account of how Thackeray was disfigured says that Venables broke the novelist's nose in a fair fight. John Ward in Notes and Queries supplies another version. About a year after Thackeray's death Mr. Ward was traveling on one of the main railways and had as companions two old ladies who knew Thackeray well. One of them said the novelist had told them this story:

"Being one of the youngest pupils (at Charterhouse), he was chosen by one of the older lads, a rather proud aristocrat in his way, to act as his fag. Thackeray bore it as well as he could, but demurred to some more arbitrary command than usual and flatly refused to obey, whereupon the young 'aristocrat' caught Thackeray up, held his head under his arm and with the heel of his boot used as a hammer beat the beautiful aquiline nose quite flat with his face—in fact, breaking and injuring its structure completely—the excuse being, 'You'll clean my boots next time, sir.'"

Before his injury Thackeray was, the same authority says, remarkably handsome.—Westminster Gazette.

Won His Supper.

Terry is of that class of gentry whose nimble wit is the only thing which keeps them from starving in this day of practicalities. Terry is a great coffee drinker, and many are the expedients he will undertake to get it when he is without funds. The other evening he walked into a cafe and said to the proprietor:

"Good evening, Mr. M."

"How are you, Terry?" was the response.

"Pretty good, pretty good, barrin' a bad throat. It's glad I am to see yer-self lookin' so smart and yer doin' so well in yer business, now, ain't yer? It's glad I am, too, about that. By the way, Mr. M., would yer be-ather trustin' me this evenin'?"

"Trust ye! Terry, I wouldn't be trustin' my own father."

"Thru fer you, Mr. M. If I'd knowed yer father as well as you perhaps I wouldn't trust him meself!"

And Terry got his coffee and rolls.—Chicago News.

When Nature Was Timekeeper.

In the British museum is a large stone composed of carbonate of lime, which would serve perfectly as a day laborer's calendar inasmuch as it would indicate to him every Sunday and holiday of the year, though not the day of the month. Moreover, the stone is an actual time record of the work done for a long period in an English coal mine.

The "Sunday stone," as it is called, was removed from a colliery drain. When the miners were at work the water running through the drain left a deposit colored black by the coal dust, but when no work was being done the water ran down clear and left a white deposit. These deposits in the course of time built up the stone. Each day of work left a black streak, immediately followed by a white streak made during the night. Wide white streaks indicate the holidays and Sundays.—Harper's Weekly.

Back to Adam

A parchment roll over a foot wide and nineteen feet long containing the genealogical tree of King Henry VI. is in the Welsh National Library at Aberystwith. The work is beautifully executed in tabular fashion of the latter half of the fifteenth century and is illuminated with miniatures, rich capitals and red ornamental letters. The pedigree is traced from Adam, and the particulars occupy a red line of six yards on the scroll. On the left side of the pedigree appears the list of archbishops of Canterbury down to John Stafford and on the right side the list of Welsh princes down to Edward I.—Dundee Advertiser.

Eskimo Trial Marriage.

The trial marriage is an ineradicable custom among the Eskimos. If a young man and woman are not suited with each other they try again, and sometimes several times, but when they find mates to whom they are adapted the arrangement is generally permanent. If two men want to marry the same woman they settle the question by a trial of strength, and the better man has his way.—"The North Pole," by Robert E. Peary.

Helping Dad.

Small Johnny—Papa, would you be glad if I saved a dollar for you? Papa—Certainly, my son. Small Johnny—Well, I saved it for you, all right. You said if I brought a first class report from my teacher this week you would give me a dollar, and I didn't bring it.—Chicago News.

What She Wanted.

Honesty.

Judge—Did you have a partner with you when you committed this burglary? Burglar—No, your honor. I never works with anybody. You see, you never can tell whether a chap is honest or not!

Man.

Man is the sun of the world, more than the real sun. The fire of his wonderful heart is the only light and heat worth gauge or measure.—Emerson.

One loses all the time which he might employ to better purpose.—Rousseau.

Life Saved at Death's Door.

"I never felt so near my grave," writes W. R. Patterson, of Wellington, Texas, "as when a frightful cough and lung trouble pulled me down to 100 pounds, in spite of doctor's treatment for two years. My father, mother and two sisters died of consumption, and that I am alive today is due solely to Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. Now I weigh 187 pounds and have been well and strong for years." Quick, safe, sure, its best remedy on earth for colds, coughs, grippe, asthma, croup, and all throat and lung troubles. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Oberdorfer.

Easily Spared.

A German in a sleeping car was unable to rest on account of the snoring of fellow travelers on each side of him. Finally one of them gave a vociferous snort and stopped still. "Thanks!" exclaimed the wakeful German, "von is det!"—The Housekeeper.
